

Abstract of the Disclosure

5 A mobile station, having software radio architecture of the type that provides the capability of global usage, is provided with a system for selecting among the modes, features and services available in the mobile station and supported within a particular cellular communications network.

09836792-041704
FOI# 26293860